An Extended Services activity of the University of Southern Indiana

Understanding Criminal Law for Social Workers will focus on decoding one of the largest, most expensive, and least understood branches of government. Social workers routinely assist clients in navigating the legal system. This workshop will assist you in understanding the role of a prosecutor's office, including how decisions are made on whether the prosecutor is the official best suited to handle a particular situation.

Topics will include some common, and not so common concepts in criminal law, along with how those concepts may be different in law than in common usage. For example, what does it really mean to prove someone guilty beyond a reasonable doubt? The workshop will also touch on the Constitutional Amendments, the Indiana Criminal Code, the Indiana Rules of Evidence, and basic statutory interpretation. The focus will not be on a vocational knowledge of these issues, but an introduction to the concepts, what the concepts mean in daily life, and how those concepts impact our criminal justice system.

A case study will be used to compare and contrast a social worker's point of view with that of the prosecutor. The fundamental values and core beliefs of each profession will be discussed.

Objectives—After this session, you will:

- Be aware of how a case is analyzed from the perspective of the prosecutor;
- Be conversant on key concepts in criminal law;
- Be aware of the legal, ethical, and moral considerations that shape a prosecutor's decisions.

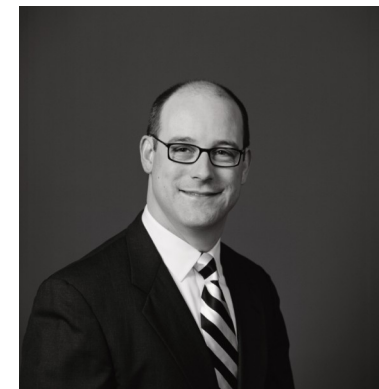

This program carries three (3) continuing education hours for social workers, counselors, mental health professionals, and psychologists licensed in Indiana. Other professionals, and those from other states, should check with their licensing authorizes for approval.
