Moeller-Sahling receives Award

Folke-Christine Moeller-Sahling, assistant professor of German and director of humanities, received an Award for Innovative Excellence in Teaching, Learning, and Technology from the Center for the Advancement of Teaching and Learning at the 16th annual International Conference on Teaching and Learning, held March 29-April 2, in Jacksonville, Florida.

Moeller-Sahling was nominated by Linda Bennett, provost and vice president for Academic Affairs. Each college or university is eligible to nominate one faculty member "who has contributed in the most highly creative ways to teaching, learning and technology." The process is competitive; only a handful of faculty receives the award each year.

Charles Harrington, assistant vice president for Academic Affairs, said that Moeller-Sahling was nominated for her pedagogical design of a distance learning class in German. "As a result of her work with our Online Institute for Teaching and Learning, she got a grant to develop an online course, and it turned out exceptionally well," he said. "The course that she developed had some excellent pedagogical components." The class engaged students in the subject material by integrating language lessons with history and culture.

A native of Hamburg, Germany, Moeller-Sahling has been with the University since fall 2001. She holds a bachelor's degree in comparative literature from Hamilton College in New York, a master's degree in German studies from the University of Vermont, and a Ph.D. in Germanic languages and literature from Ohio State University.

University Q & A: Julie Payne

Native Texan Julie Payne is director of Residence Life. Born in Fort Worth and raised in Houston, she moved to Evansville in July 1998 to accept a position as manager of Residence Education. "It was kind of a homecoming," she said. "My mother, grandparents, and great-grandparents are all from Indianapolis – so I've got Hoosier and Texas blood running through my veins!"

Payne got involved with theater in her mid-twenties, when she accompanied a friend to an audition. She's been acting ever since, and was cast in Civic Theatre's Nunsense III two weeks after moving to Evansville. Her most recent performance was in Henderson Community Theatre's production of Anything Goes.

What was your first job?

I was a cashier at Randall's grocery store.

What is your most marked characteristic?

I am full of boundless energy and very positive!

What is your greatest strength?

I have two – compassion and determination.

What is your principal defect?

Defect? Did my warranty run out? Seriously – I would have to say a certain level of impatience.

What natural gift would you most like to possess?

I would love to be able to ice skate GRACEFULLY. I can put the skates on – but graceful is not a word you would use to describe my ice skating abilities.

What is your dream of happiness?

I'm living it right now. I love my job, my family, my friends, my colleagues, and my life. Sure, the daily routine and challenges can bog me down, but I have to challenge myself to see every day that there is wonder and beauty all around – I just have to stop and realize that it's there.

What to your mind would be the greatest of misfortunes?

That there would be no music or laughter in the world – that would be tragic.

Where would you like to live?

Either the west coast (Washington State) or in the motherland – Texas! But I'm having a great time as a Hoosier.

Where would you like to visit?

Italy.

Who are your favorite composers or musicians?

George Gershwin, Aaron Copeland, Cole Porter, Annie Lennox, Eric Clapton, Mary Chapin Carpenter, and Jonny Lang.

Who are your heroes in real life?

My mother – she is absolutely amazing. She put herself through law school while holding a full time job and raising a challenging child (yes – that would be me). Through it all she remains a pillar of support for me – and a continual source of inspiration. If I can be half the woman she is – I will have lived richly.

What was the last song that you heard and loved?

That would have to be Jonny Lang's "The One I Got" from his latest CD. I'm actually listening to it right now, and am amazed by the talent of this young blues artist, as well as by the powerful emotion in the song itself.

What is your hobby and what about it gives you joy?

I am a performer in local theater productions – mainly musicals. It combines many of the things I love – acting, singing, dancing – and it gives me a release from the everyday pressures of life. How better to “escape” than to become another person? In truth, I love the joy of connecting with people through song – bringing happiness, causing them to think, and challenging their perspectives. In return, I have the privilege of growing as an artist, and as a human being.

If you could change one thing about your appearance, what would it be and why?

Aside from maintaining my health by more regular exercise and a better diet – I don’t think I would change anything. Maybe my hair color – a little experimenting there might be fun.

If you could live in a different time period, what time period would it be and why?

I’d live in the Big Band era and pursue a solo singing career. I love the music of that time period.

What are you doing in a parallel universe?

Living in New York City in a small apartment with probably about four other starving artists, auditioning for Broadway musicals, and sharing the last can of beans with one of my roommates!

Have you written your epitaph? If so, what does it say?

Very simply - “My wish for all - Peace, love, and enough.”

Feasibility study for Southern Indiana Artisans Program underway

The Ohio River Scenic Route of Indiana, Inc. (ORSR) has received grant monies from the State of Indiana to conduct a feasibility study for the development of an artisan program in a 21-county region in southern Indiana. The counties include Dearborn, Ohio, Switzerland, Jefferson, Clark, Floyd, Harrison, Crawford, Perry, Spencer, Warrick, Vanderburgh, Posey, Gibson, Pike, Dubois, Orange, Washington, Scott, Jennings, and Ripley. Staff of Historic Southern Indiana, a community outreach program of USI, assisted with writing the Quality of Place Initiative grant for the ORSR and will assist with the study. "We think this project will create a great opportunity for Indiana artisans, craftspeople, communities, and art retailers to take advantage of the resurgence of interest and increased market for handmade products," said Darrell Voelker, ORSR president.

ORSR has contracted with Werking Communities, Inc., to conduct the study. Werking Communities, Inc., specializes in the development of artisan programs and has worked with several arts-related programs in Kentucky, including Kentucky Craft Marketing, the Kentucky Artisan Heritage Trail project, and the Kentucky Artisan Center at Berea.

Kathy Werking, owner of Werking Communities, is an artist and gallery owner from Midway, Kentucky. She has a Ph.D. in communication from Purdue University and has taught at the University of Louisville, University of New Hampshire, and Eastern Kentucky University. Her associate, David Cordell, assists businesses in start-up and development. "ORSR and Werking Communities, Inc. are excited about the possibility of developing a uniquely Hoosier artisan program that will benefit artisans and retail businesses and look forward to meeting and talking with business owners," Werking said.

A major goal of the project is to conduct an inventory of artisans and retail outlets that sell handmade crafts and specialty food products. Artisans include craftspeople, fine artists, wine-makers, cheese-makers, and gourmet or specialty food makers. Retail outlets includes retail spaces, such as gift stores, galleries, or state park gift shops, engaged in the sale of handmade crafts, arts, and/or specialty foods. Once these resources are identified, a program tailored to the assets of the region and to the needs of its artisans and retail businesses will be proposed.

Werking and Cordell will be contacting artisans and retail businesses in the next few weeks to ask basic questions about their products and business. The interviews will take 10 to 15 minutes to complete. The information provided is valuable to the future artisan program. "Identifying all the artisans in the area, developing a brand identity and creating marketing channels will go a long way toward allowing southern Indiana's high quality artisans some of the same opportunities available in other states. We encourage everyone in the area who has an interest in the subject to participate and to provide information to make the project a success," said Voelker.

Contact Werking at 859/265-0445.

New Harmony gallery celebrates 30 years

The New Harmony Gallery of Contemporary Art will celebrate "30 years in Utopia" with an exhibition featuring six artists chosen by former directors of the gallery. Each of the artists has exhibited at the New Harmony gallery in the past. Founding director John Begley chose Indiana artist Rick Paul; Jonathan Soard chose New York artist Mary Beth Edelson; Connie Weinzapfel, who is now director of Historic New Harmony, chose Indiana artist Karen Thompson; former interim director Scott Knauer chose Illinois artist, Chaeonae Kim; Blake Cook chose Indiana artist Ann Lannert; and current director, April Vasher-Dean chose Illinois artist Carole Loeffler.

"It is virtually unheard of for a contemporary gallery to exist in a town this small, but NHGCA doesn't just exist, it thrives," Vasher-Dean said. "It is a part of the very fabric of New Harmony. We are thrilled to share our celebration with the entire community and look forward to the next 30 years!"

A reception for the artists will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Saturday, May 21, and is free and open to the public. The exhibition runs through Thursday, June 30. The gallery is located at 506 Main Street in New Harmony, Indiana. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday. For more information, call 812/682-3156.

Names in the news

Welcome

Andrea Ruth Seib has accepted a position as senior administrative assistant in the Development office. She is a 2005 USI graduate with a Bachelor of Science degree in public relations and advertising, and was formerly a student worker in the Office of Advancement.

Jeri Broshears has accepted a position as senior administrative assistant in the Office of Student Development. She is pursuing an associate's degree in business.

Heather R. Odom has accepted a position as fee waiver clerk in the Office of Financial Assistance. She has a Bachelor of Arts in liberal arts from Indiana University.

James A. Hopper has accepted a position with the Physical Plant.

Janet K. Labhart has accepted a position as an administrative assistant in the Occupational Therapy Department.

Transfers/promotions

Christine Wolf, from cashier to accounting assistant in the Business office.

Accomplishments

Carolyn Roth, instructor in art, has had her article entitled "Being An Artist" published in the current issue (Vol. 9 No. 2) of The Journal for the Liberal Arts and Sciences, a School of Education publication of Oakland City University.

In appreciation

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you for the flowers, plants, cards, phone calls, well-wishes, and prayers during my hospitalization and home recovery. Your thoughtfulness has been greatly appreciated, has made my recuperation that much faster, and has once again shown me the generosity of this University family." – Gina Walker, library associate.

In memoriam

A great friend to the University, Donald B. Cox, died Monday, May 9, 2005, at St. Mary's Medical Center. A real estate broker and active member of the Republican Party, Cox was a delegate to the Republican National Convention five times in three decades, and a delegate to every Republican State Convention from 1960 to 2000. He chaired state political campaigns for presidents George W. Bush and Gerald R. Ford, and Governor Robert D. Orr.

As a close friend and advisor to Governor Orr, Cox was active in the legislative and administrative process that led to USI being established as a separate state university in July 1985.

"Don Cox was one of USI's greatest friends," said President H. Ray Hoops. "He was a long-time member of the Board of Directors of the USI Foundation and was instrumental in the successful effort to build the University Home. He also gave extraordinary leadership to the effort to make the University a separate state university 20 years ago. It is fair to say that without his leadership, USI might still be a regional campus rather than one that serves all the state."

The University honored Cox on more than one occasion. He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree in 1988, an Alumni Association Special Recognition Award in 1986, and was a charter member of the President's Circle, a group initiated in 1990 which recognizes those whose personal and volunteer efforts, advice, and expertise have been consistently present in shaping the University.

Memorial contributions may be made to the USI Foundation or the Welborn Baptist Foundation Don Cox Memorial Grant Fund.

Joe Valadares, father of Kevin Valadares, assistant professor of health services, and father-in-law of Katie Valadares, instructor in health services, died on Thursday, May 12. Services were held at Kelly Funeral Home in Nepean, Ontario.

Frank and Judy O'Bannon Heritage Enrichment Award deadline is May 31

Historic Southern Indiana's Frank and Judy O'Bannon Heritage Enrichment Award will recognize an individual who is committed to the distinctive heritage of southern Indiana and works with youths 18 and under. The award will be presented to an individual who has become an exemplary model of community education in such activities as community heritage, heritage/cultural tourism, historic preservation, and historical interpretation in the Historic Southern Indiana region. The recipient's achievements will reflect the overall mission of HSI as well as the special interest of the O'Bannons in Indiana youth.

The award is open for people in paid positions as well as volunteers whose programs enrich the lives of young people age 18 or under. It is not limited to those who work in the schools. Nominees must reside in the Historic Southern Indiana region — the 26 counties of the southern part of the state: Clark, Crawford, Daviess, Dearborn, Dubois, Floyd, Gibson, Harrison, Jackson, Jefferson, Jennings, Knox, Lawrence, Martin, Ohio, Orange, Perry, Pike, Posey, Ripley, Scott, Spencer, Switzerland, Vanderburgh, Warrick, and Washington.

Interested individuals may nominate themselves. A panel of judges will select the recipient by September 1, 2005. The award will be presented at the annual meeting of Historic Southern Indiana in early fall. The award will include a $1,000 cash prize, a plaque, recognition at the annual meeting of Historic Southern Indiana, an article highlighting the achievements of the recipient in the Historic Southern Indiana newsletter, and a news release featuring the recipient's achievements. For a nomination form or more information, contact HSI at 812/465-7014.
