- Dr. Craig R. Ehlen, accounting, School of Business
- Dr. Judith A. Halstead, nursing, School of Nursing and Health Professions
- Dr. Kwangok Kim, accounting, School of Business
- Dr. Aimee J. Luebben, occupational therapy, School of Nursing and Health Professions

Commission endorses engineering degree

The Indiana Commission for Higher Education has approved a resolution to bring a general engineering program to southern Indiana as early as next fall.

The new resolution calls for USI to work with Purdue University to offer a bachelor's degree, either jointly or by one or both of the institutions.

The resolution also requests that the two universities develop a curriculum that will allow students to take two years at USI and then transfer to Purdue or University of Evansville for specialized engineering courses, and that Purdue should work with USI to eventually offer electrical and mechanical engineering programs.

USI President Dr. H. Ray Hoops called the move a positive development.

"The University of Southern Indiana believes that the provision of additional engineering education is essential to the continuing economic development of the southern region of the state," he said. "We are committed to providing that service."

Honors Week begins March 18

Honors Week, March 18 through 21, is dedicated to the recognition of outstanding academic excellence, scholarship award winners, and scholarship donors.

Each of USI's academic schools will host an Honors Week program in Mitchell Auditorium. The schedule follows:

- Monday, March 18 - Pott School of Science and Engineering Technology, 4 p.m.
- Tuesday, March 19 - School of Business, 4 p.m.
- Wednesday, March 20 - Bowers Suhrheinrich School of Education and Human Services, 4 p.m.
- Thursday, March 21 - School of Nursing and Health Professions, 1 p.m.
- Thursday, March 21 - School of Liberal Arts, 4 p.m.

USI hosting Elite Eight in Evansville

After a 25-year absence, the NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Championship will rebound to Roberts Stadium March 20 through 23. USI and the GLVC are hosting the Elite Eight's return to its roots in Evansville.

"This is a chance for Evansville, USI, and our great basketball fans to shine and make an impression on the NCAA tournament officials and others," said Sherriann Standley, vice president for Advancement.

"Let's all turn out to support the Elite Eight and try to bring it back to Evansville on a long-term basis."

Evansville hosted the first Division II Tournament in 1956, and Elite Eight games continued at Roberts Stadium until 1977. Since then, tournament play has seen courts as far away as California.

Returning to Roberts Stadium, teams in the 46th annual Elite Eight include top-ranked Kentucky Wesleyan, third-ranked California State University-San Bernardino, fourth-ranked Adelphi University, sixth-ranked Northwest Missouri State University, 13th-ranked Shaw University, 16th-ranked Indiana University of Pennsylvania, 22nd-ranked Metropolitan State College, and unranked State University of West Georgia.

Elite Eight Highlights
- Wednesday, March 20 - Quarterfinals
  - Noon - IU of Pa. vs. Northwest Missouri
Lecturer to discuss community, ‘Nun Study’

A member of the groundbreaking “Nun Study” research staff will be the next speaker in USI’s Center for Communal Studies Lecture Series. Gari-Anne Patzwald will present “Reflections on Community from the Nun Study” at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 21, in Carter Hall.

Conducted by University of Kentucky, The Nun Study of the School Sisters of Notre Dame is a longitudinal study of aging and Alzheimer’s disease. Ranging in age from 75 to 106, the study’s participants are 678 members of the School Sisters of Notre Dame religious congregation in the Eastern, Midwestern, and Southern regions of the United States.

Funded by the National Institute on Aging, the study aims to determine the causes of Alzheimer’s and ways to prevent the disease, other brain diseases, and the mental and physical disability associated with old age.

Based on her research and study director David Snowdon’s book, Aging with Grace: What the Nun Study Teaches Us About Aging with Grace, Patzwald’s interactive presentation will describe how religious communities endure and are impacted by an aging membership as well as the effects of the sisters’ lifestyle on their resistance to Alzheimer’s.

No stranger to the field of communal studies, Patzwald wrote her master’s thesis at Lexington Theological Seminary on a community in Tennessee, and the thesis is scheduled for publication by University of Tennessee Press as Waiting for Elijah in fall 2002. She also is a frequent visitor to New Harmony, site of the 19th-century communities of Harmonists and Owenites.

The Center for Communal Studies lecture series is free and open to the public. The center is a clearinghouse for information, a research facility, and a sponsor of activities related to historic and contemporary intentional communities.

Reception to honor professors of art

An exhibit celebrating the 25-year association of two USI professors of art opens this month, and a public reception honoring John M. McNaughton and Lenny Dowhie will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. March 23 at the New Harmony Gallery of Contemporary Art.

McNaughton’s wood sculptures can be found in collections throughout the Evansville area and across the United States. His recent work, during a spring 2001 sabbatical, found inspiration in the sense the artist had of having lived on another planet populated with vast forests of square trees.

“Perhaps like these trees, I am also a stranger from another world and when my work is finished here, some other world awaits,” he said.

The recipient of numerous grants and awards, McNaughton was one of 12 Indiana artists selected by Historic Landmarks of Indiana to create an angel for exhibit at West Baden in 2001. Eight years earlier, he was one of 10 American artists selected for a cultural exchange program sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts that allowed him to lecture and demonstrate in Mexico for six months.

McNaughton joined the USI faculty in 1970 after receiving an M.F.A. at Bowling Green State University. He also has taught at Arrowmont School of Crafts in Tennessee and Penland School of Crafts in North Carolina.

Dowhie’s ceramics and drawings are represented in numerous national and international collections, including the Shigaraki Ceramics Cultural Park, Australian National University, American General Finance, and the Smithsonian Institute of American Art, Renwick Gallery.

He holds an M.F.A. from Indiana State University and came to USI in 1978 after teaching at Nichols State University, Indiana University, and Kirkland College.

A member of the National Council on Education for the Ceramic Arts, Dowhie served as president of the organization from 1984 to 1986. He served on the American Crafts Council Board of Trustees and is cofounder of the Coalition of Creative Organizations, for which he served as president from 1990 to 1994.

He also is a partner in Expressions of Culture Inc., producer of the International Expositions of Sculpture, Objects, and Functional Art in Chicago and New York City.

Dowhie has served as a visiting artist in Australia, Canada, Japan, Mexico, the Peoples Republic of China, Russia, and the United States. He also is the recipient of numerous grants and awards, and recently published an essay in Ceramics Monthly, a national ceramics journal.

Working primarily in clay and pastels, Dowhie has chosen the teapot as a vehicle for telling stories and sharing observations of beauty and absurdity.

“John McNaughton and Lenny Dowhie: Wood and Ceramics” will be on display at the New Harmony Gallery of Contemporary Art through May 4. Exhibit hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday. For more information, call 812/682-3156.

USI celebrating Diversity Week

Program to focus on healing racism

It’s not just black and white.

Teja Arboleda’s father is Filipino-Chinese/African-American, and his mother is Danish/German. Aroboleda was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., but grew up in Japan. He’s called “Ethnic Man” and will present “Gene Therapy: Healing Racism” during USI’s celebration of Diversity Week, March 25 through 28.

In his interactive program about diversity and what it means to be human, Aroboleda offers an entertaining and poignant look at the basics of diversity: the history of racial definitions; the differences among race, culture, and gender issues; ideas that broaden the perspective of identity; and ways to break down barriers created by stereotypes and assumptions.

A writer, actor, comedian, and teacher, Aroboleda is founder, president, and executive producer of Entertaining Diversity Inc. in Dedham, Mass.

The author of In the Shadow of Race: Growing Up as a Multiracial American, Aroboleda was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., but grew up in Japan. He’s called “Ethnic Man” and will present “Gene Therapy: Healing Racism” during USI’s celebration of Diversity Week, March 25 through 28.

The author of In the Shadow of Race: Growing Up as a Multiracial American, Aroboleda also is an Emmy award-winning television professional. His one-man shows "Gene Therapy" and "Ethnic Man!" have received national acclaim, and he has presented more than 500 programs at academic institutions, corporations, and conventions across the United States.

Sponsored by the Activities Programming Board, "Gene Therapy" will be presented at 8 p.m. March 25 in Carter Hall.

Library observing Women's History Month

In conjunction with Women's History Month, The David L. Rice Library is exhibiting two displays honoring women who have made special contributions to the University.

"Looking at USI's Phenomenal Women," a display on the library's main floor, celebrates University donors and contributors whose support has been recognized with the dedication of facilities or endowed academic chairs named in their honor. They include:

- Dr. Margaret Henderson Blair - Blair Chair of Business Science
- Dr. Dallas Bower Suhreinich - Bower Suhreinich School of Education and Human Services
- The late Dr. Josephine K. Carter - Carter Hall
- Dr. Trudy F. Mitchell - Mitchell Auditorium
- The late Dr. Helen N. Ruston - Ruston Terrace, Liberal Arts Center

"USI Women in Their Own Words," exhibited on the library's upper level, honors the contributions of some past and present female faculty through their published writings. Authors highlighted in the display are Josephine Elliott, archivist emerita; Dr. Wanda Hibbitts, professor emerita of business; Dr. Sandra Singer, former associate professor of psychology; Dr. Nancy Rhoden, chair of the History Department; Patricia Aakhus, instructor in English; and Dr. Jane Johansen, associate professor of business education.

Both exhibits, on display through the end of March, were created with the help of staff from the USI Foundation, Office of Advancement, Printing Services, and Rice Library Special Collections and University Archives.

The University community also is invited to celebrate National Women's History Month with three special programs on campus March 18, 20, and 21.

Established Evansville professional women will participate in a free roundtable discussion from noon to 1 p.m. Monday, March 18, in the University Conference Center. Those attending may bring a lunch.

On Wednesday, March 20, USI will present "Phenomenal Women of Evansville," an awards program honoring those who inspire and make a difference in the community. The free event, from 6 to 9 p.m. in Carter Hall, also will include a guest speaker, book signings, refreshments, and an exhibit by Evansville service providers.

Thursday, March 21, Dr. Mary A. Hums, University of Louisville associate professor of sport administration, will deliver the lecture, "Celebrating Women's Sport Through the Years: Breaking Barriers, Overcoming Hurdles," from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Forum III.

Hums' free program will consider the past triumphs, current opportunities, and future challenges of women in athletics.

The Multicultural Center is coordinating USI's Women's History Month events. For more information, call the center at extension 7188.

Names in the news

Achievements

- Dr. Charles T. Barber, professor of political science, participated in the spring meeting of the Midwest Association for Middle East and Islamic Studies at Indiana State University in Terre Haute, Ind. He presented a lecture, "The Role of IGOs in the Middle East Today," at the meeting in March.

- Dr. Hilary Braysmith, associate professor of art history, presented "Then and Now: The Art of Eastern Germany" in February at the opening of "Beyond the Wall: 10 Artists from Berlin," an exhibition she co-curated in Washington, D.C. She and her curatorial partner, Dr. Sibylle Badstuebner-Groeger, also were interviewed by Alex van Oss of NPR. "Beyond the Wall: 10 Artists from Berlin" will remain on display in Washington until April.

- International Engineering History and Heritage, the proceedings of the Third National Congress on Civil Engineering History and Heritage, co-edited by Jay Fredrich, associate dean of the Pott School of Science and Engineering Technology, and Dr. Jerry Rogers, associate professor of civil engineering at University of Houston, has been nominated for the American Public Works Association's 2002 Abe Swiss Award. The award is presented each year to the author or editor of the book chosen as the best book with subject history published in the preceding year.

International Engineering History and Heritage contains 60 papers presented at the American Society of Civil Engineers National Convention in Houston in 2001. Fredrich's paper, "Restoration and Preservation of Medieval Churches: Responding to Natural Disasters," is among the papers included in the book. It describes engineering solutions to problems caused by fire resulting from a lightning strike at York Minster in York, England; flood damage to Santa Croce, Santa Maria Novella, and Santa Maria del Fiore in Florence, Italy; earthquake damage to the Basilica of Saint Francis in Assisi, Italy; and periodic inundation due to subsidence at St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice, Italy.

- Dr. Mohammed Khayum, professor of economics, was elected president of the Midwest Business Economics Association at its conference February 27 through March 1 in Chicago, where Dr. Timothy J. Schibik, director of the Center for Teaching and Learning and professor of economics, was elected a member of the MBEA Board of Directors.

Several University faculty also made presentations at the 2002 MBEA Conference. Conference presentations and their presenters (USI faculty are listed in italics) included:

- "Determinants of Perceived Pain in Physical Therapy Patients: A Case Study of a Midwestern Health Care Provider" - Dr. Daniel Friesner, assistant professor of economics, Donna Nefeldt, and Janet Raisor
- "Empirical Analysis of Dynamic Capital Structure: Pecking Order vs. Trade Off" - Dr. Soku Byoun, assistant professor of finance
- "Facilitating Student Engagement in the Introductory Business Statistics Course" - Dr. Charles F. Harrington, assistant vice president for Academic Affairs and associate professor of management, and Schibik
