THE HISTORY OF ARCHIBALD T. EAGLE

The Screaming Eagle has been a University of Southern Indiana tradition since 1970 when the mascot was introduced at the first game of the 1970-71 basketball season. By 1978, students decided that the mascot needed a name. A contest was held and the winning name was Archibald T. Eagle (T. stands for “The”).

In 2014, as part of the evolution of the USI brand, Archibald T. Eagle, now affectionately known as “Archie”, took on characteristics of our athletic teams—strong, competitive and tough. His makeover resulted in a proud, refined eagle that maintained the original coloration of the brown feathers and gold beak and legs, and donned the school colors of USI Navy Blue, USI Red and white in his apparel. Today, Archie is a symbol of USI spirit and an ambassador for USI.

MASCOT USAGE GUIDELINES

As the official mascot for the University of Southern Indiana, Archie is a symbolic figure of Screaming Eagle spirit. Archie should be used primarily in casual/informal communications where the target audience has a known affinity for the mascot and when communicating with audiences to convey Screagle pride. Archie should not be used as a primary USI identifier.

Archie is copyrighted and licensed by the University of Southern Indiana. No other poses other than shown in this guide are authorized or recognized by the University.

Permission to use Archie by University departments and student organizations must be obtained from University Marketing and Communication. If you have questions, need usage permission or the mascot marks, contact information can be found on page 12.
