IRB Guidance:

If you plan to present human subject data (such as findings on student learning or results of systematic data collection), this might require Institutional Review Board approval. If IRB approval will not be obtained by the time of presentation, your presentation can focus on reflections, lessons learned, and connections to the literature.

- ☐ I have read and acknowledge this IRB guidance.

Describe how you plan to engage audience for the selected session format.

Abstract

The presentation abstract describes how your proposed presentation relates to student learning or academic success. Please review the Call for Proposals for detailed instructions and review rubric.

- SoTL abstracts (300-500 words) also highlight how your proposed presentation relates to student learning or academic success. It also should describe why the work is relevant, what was done, and the takeaways/lessons learned. SoTL abstracts should include: research question/context, grounding, approach/methods, and discussion/lessons learned.
- Teaching Practice abstracts (200-300 words) also highlight how your proposed presentation relates to student learning or academic success, along with lessons learned or challenges.

Abstract:

Please submit in the text box below or as a file upload. If your abstract contains formatting, it is recommended that you upload a file.
