Vice President for Development
The University

Established in 1965, the University of Southern Indiana is one of five state universities in Indiana conferring baccalaureate and higher degrees. From its earliest stage of planning in the early 1960s, community leaders have supported the University by providing a solid base for its present success and future growth. That community support continues today, as evidenced by continued strong giving to a vibrant USI Foundation, and a solid reputation in the state legislature. The University of Southern Indiana has undergone a major transformation in academic programs and in instructional and support facilities. The climate exists for growth and expansion.

The University of Southern Indiana recognizes, through its mission, the diversity of its learners, other constituencies and the greater society it serves. Strategic decisions, planning and budget priorities, and administrative and academic goals are congruent with USI’s mission. The University’s governance and administrative structures promote effective leadership and support collaborative processes that enable the University to fulfill its mission.

The University of Southern Indiana’s appeal to students is found in its size, accessibility of professors, beautiful environment and innovative housing, proximity to an urban center, friendliness of students, employees and the community, as well as its affordability and value. The University is in close proximity to major cities, including St. Louis, Indianapolis, Louisville and Nashville.

Set on a beautiful 1,400-acre campus, USI is a Carnegie Foundation Community Engaged University located in Evansville, Indiana, supported by the local business community and a vibrant arts and entertainment culture. USI enrolls nearly 9,300 undergraduate, graduate and dual credit students in more than 130 areas of study with an average grade point average of 3.4 for entering freshman. A public higher education institution, USI boasts competitive and renowned programs through the College of Nursing and Health Professions, the Romain College of Business, the Pott College of Science, Engineering, and Education, the College of Liberal Arts, and the School of Graduate Studies.

The University provides study-abroad opportunities in more than 60 countries, as well as hosting international students from around the globe. USI offers continuing education and special programs to more than 15,000 participants annually. The University’s Outreach and Engagement programs include its Center for Applied Research, College Achievement Program, Community Engagement (including Historic New Harmony, Historic Southern Indiana and the New Harmony Gallery of Contemporary Art), Corporate Partnerships and Customized Training, training at Westgate Academy serving the Crane Naval Base members, Lifelong Learning Noncredit Courses and Certifications, Reserve Officers’ Training Corps (ROTC), Safety Training, Service Learning, Southern Indiana Japanese School, USI @ Innovation Pointe, and

INSTITUTIONAL OUTLOOK

The University of Southern Indiana is a thriving institution with highly regarded academic programs, a long history of a strong student-focused culture, a community of active teachers and scholars, and a record of commitment to its community and region. The University of Southern Indiana faces both challenges and opportunities over the near term as it seeks to sustain and further strengthen programs and services for its students, as well as the wider community, state and beyond.

STRENGTHENING RELATIONS WITH ALUMNI

The University’s commitment to the future is in part dependent upon support of past students. The University seeks to strengthen existing relationships with alumni, as well as seek and establish new partnerships that will be mutually beneficial. The University’s alumni are extremely supportive; however, more can be done to improve alumni interaction, financial support and involvement.

DIVERSIFYING RESOURCES

Despite the fact that Indiana is the envy of many states regarding funding for higher education, the University of Southern Indiana has experienced changes in the tax-supported share of its operating budget and has limited control over tuition rates and limited ability to set student fees. Therefore, the new Vice President for Development will need to be a financial advocate for the University, finding ways to maintain and improve energetic fundraising with alumni and other donors, the development of other resources through community and economic development, greater internal efficiencies and creative marshaling of campus finances.

MAINTAINING AND IMPROVING PROGRAM EXCELLENCE

The University has gained a reputation for excellence in student learning, teaching and scholarship. Every effort must be made to ensure that excellence remains the focal point in all aspects of the University. Increased enrollment, retention and more visible national recognition can only be accomplished if the academic culture and student focus remain at the center of USI’s commitment.

DEMOGRAPHICS AND ENROLLMENT MANAGEMENT

Consistent with many other campuses, the University of Southern Indiana is in a region that has population declines within the traditional age cohort for several years. Additionally, competition for students has grown. The University is committed to growing enrollment and while admission and retention profiles have been stable, the campus must further build on this promising foundation to further strengthen and support a student-focused model in the years ahead and more effectively represent the University more aggressively in additional markets.

PERFORMANCE-BASED FUNDING

The State of Indiana has a system of performance-based funding for public institutions, the primary focus of the current metrics being degree completion, student persistence, STEM, at risk populations, and on-time graduation.
STRENGTHENING DIVERSITY

The University of Southern Indiana has made a strong commitment to diversity, and values the gains it has made. Enhanced ethnic, religious, racial, economic and gender diversity needs to be encouraged in the recruitment of students, faculty and staff. Achieving understanding and acceptance of fully integrated diversity is valued and is part of the strategic plan. Further progress in these areas will require sustained and vigorous commitment from the entire University community to deeply integrate the diversity goals into personal and institutional development, teaching, scholarship, service and global collaborations.

EMBRACING SHARED GOVERNANCE

The administration, faculty, staff and students are committed to working collaboratively to continually improve all aspects of the University. The University not only has a commitment to shared governance, but its structures and processes give evidence to a strong culture of collaboration. The administration works with the Faculty Senate, Administrative Senate, Staff Council and Student Government Association in the development of policies and in decision making at a variety of levels. Working effectively with various constituent groups to ensure mutual respect, participation and cooperation is critical to the future growth and development of the University.

COMMUNITY SERVICE AND ENGAGEMENT

Beyond its institutional value as an economic and cultural resource, the University of Southern Indiana—a Carnegie Foundation Community Engaged University—has taken a number of proactive steps to lead and partner with economic and educational initiatives both within its immediate region and beyond. Through its office of Outreach and Engagement, innovative programs include Historic New Harmony and USI @ Innovation Pointe, Evansville’s high-tech business incubator, among others. The University promotes personal growth, business development and economic revitalization in the community.
